

Superintendent Dr. Josh Liddell and the Chautauqua Lake School Board are proud to welcome Mr. Jeff Angeletti to the Chautauqua Lake family as the newly appointed Building Operations, Support Services, and Athletics Supervisor. Dr. Liddell stated, "Our district is excited and grateful for the opportunity to have Mr. Angeletti join the Chautauqua Lake Central School community. He proudly served at the Hewes Educational Center for the past twenty-two years as the Conservation and Natural Resources Management Teacher. At Hewes, he was responsible for teaching four core areas of conservation: forestry, wildlife, landscaping, and heavy equipment operation." Dr. Liddell continued, "Mr. Angeletti brings a wealth of leadership, coaching, and professional experience. He has the perfect background for the position, and more importantly, he is a great person with an outstanding work ethic and a high level of character."

Mr. Angeletti has coached Girls Basketball and Softball at Panama for over a decade, winning multiple league and Sectional championships. In addition, he has provided leadership as the advisor of the Future Farmers of America and Envirothon, serving as Clerk of the Works for the Chautauqua County Children's Safety Village, and owner/operator of his own landscaping company.

Mr. Angeletti is a proud Nittany Lion, earning his Bachelor of Science in Wildlife and Fisheries Science from Penn State University. He earned a Master's Degree from Buffalo State University in Career and Technical Education. After completing the School Building Leader program at Canisius, Mr. Angeletti has just recently received his school administration certification.

Jeff Angeletti's gratitude for this opportunity to work within the Chautauqua Lake district is also rooted in his love of the outdoors and family. "My passion for the outdoors can be a little too much, as I love to hunt, fish, golf, hike, and do anything associated with nature!" Mr. Angeletti added, "I have been married to my high-school sweetheart Pam for over 26 years. Together, we have a small 46-acre hobby farm. We have two daughters, Elle, a senior at Oswego, and Natalie, a sophomore at Daemen that plays on their basketball team."

Mr. Angeletti believes that Chautauqua Lake is exceptional because of the phenomenal administration, teachers, and staff. He is also impressed by the community and the vast educational and co-curricular opportunities available for the students. He states, "These are exciting times for everyone at CLCS. I just completed my 600-hour Educational Leadership internship this past summer at CLCS and was completely embraced by the staff, leadership team, and everyone else in the Thunderbird community." Mr. Angeletti goes on enthusiastically, "I am so grateful to be part of the CLCS family and can't wait to start on October 12!"
